In Support of the Rash Claim Made by Kelly and Johnston.

BOSTON AND ST. LOUIS SHUT OUT.

Pittsburg Did Not Play, but There Will be Two Games To-Day.

AN EPITOME OF THE SPORTING NEWS.

The decision in the Boston-Philadelphia controversy will be in favor of the latter, and the game will be declared a tie. The rain prevented many games yesterday, in-elading that of Pittsburg at Washington. Two games will be played to-day if possible.

ISPECIAL TELEGRAN TO THE DISPATCH.1 WASHIGTON, September 13 .- It is quite likely that the protested game of the Philadelphia club against the Bostons will be decided a tie, as the former organization has urged from the outset. All the trouble, it is alleged, arose from a declination of duty on the part of Johnston, of the Bostons, who failed to run to first base after making a clean hit, which sent Captain Kelly across the plate with the winning run

When the League met last winter a amendment was adopted to the playin rules of the game, providing that "if th side last at bat in the ninth inning score the winning run before the third man is ou the game shall terminate upon the return o the ball to the pitcher." This rule undoub edly applies to the 12-inning game now in dis pute between the Philadelphias and Bostons and when it was adopted by the League mag nates last winter it was stated explicitly that i was intended to cover just an emergency a has arisen in this controversy.

NO AFFIDAVIT FILED.

Although President Soden promised that Johnston would send an affidavit in answer to that filed by Captain Farrar, of the Philadel-phia club, charging the Boston center fielder with failing to touch first base, thus far posuch communication has been received at League headquarters from the Hub. President Young concluded not to wait any longer, but seni Farrar's affidavit and the protest of the Phila-delphia club to members of the Board of Direcdelphia club to members of the Board of Directors of the League, requesting them to vote upon the matter at once. According to the constitution of the League, in cases of disputes and complaints, "the Board of Directors shall be the sole triounal to determine disputes between clubs; the facts to be submitted and the dispute adjudicated under such regulations as the board shall prescribe in the case. The finding of the board shall be final and under no circumstances shall be reconsidered, reder no circumstances shall be reconsidered, re-opened or inquired into either by the League opened or inquired into either by the League or any subsequent board."

Messrs. W. A. Nimick, of the Pittsburgs; J. T. Brosh, of the Indianapolis; J. B. Day, of the New Yorks, and W. F. Hewitt, of the Washingtons, constituted the Board of Directors, and two of the body, Messrs. Brush and Day, have already voted on the paper submitted to them by President Young. Mr. Nimick will probably be heard from to-morrow, as he has the document at his home, and President Hewitt, of Wassington, will have his answer ready about the same time. Owing to the fact that Mr. Day was foremost in advocating that the ball should be returned to the pitcher and that any club violating this provision should be that any club violating this provision should be punished severely, no one believes for an in-stant that he will do otherwise than decide against the Bostons in the case, and especially in view of Johnston's failure to swear blank that he ran to first base after hitti

AGAINST BOSTON. President Hewitt, of the Washin

erally stands by John B. Day, and in this instance the, too, can be relied upon to vote against Boston, and it is understood that Brush has already voted to make the game a tie. Hence Nimick's action one way or the other will not affect the result; but President Young is not willing to make an official announcement until all the members of the Board of Directors have been heard from. Rain prevented the Pittsburg and Washing-

Rain prevented the Pittsburg and Washington clubs from playing to-day, but there are indications of a clear-up to-night and two games will be played to-morrow. Captain Hanion was counting on overhauling the Indianapolis for sixth place before leaving the Capital City, but the inclement weather has reduced his chances of accomplishing his end. Mr. Nimick has satisfied President Young that he has secured Alex. Jones and Mr. Hess, two promising young men, who will be given a trial with the Pittsburg club at home. Martin Sullivan has been released by Indianopolis, thus putting an end to all outside negotiations for the release of Paul Hines.

TWO GREAT GAMES.

Cleveland Shuts Out Boston Once and Then Plays a Tic.

ptember 13.-The Bostons and Clevelands played two games to-day, resulting in a most creditable victory for the latter in the first contest, and a tie score in the second. Radbourne emulated Clarkson's example of yes terday and pitched in both games. He was poorly supported at the bat, but the fielding of the home team was the equal of its opponents. Radbourne would have lost both games, but in the ninth inning of the second, with two men cut, he himself sent the ball over the loft field fence for a home run, tieing the score, and then carily pitching out the Cleveland side. The features of the two games were the great infield work of McKean and Stricker. Attendance 4,110. The second game was called on account of darkness. Two games will be played to-morrow. Score:

MCKEESPORT, September 13.-McKeesports and Braddocks played a great game here today, starting at 2 o'clock so as to be done before the great race. McKeesport won by the close score of 4 to 3. The game being an exhibition game the Braddocks strengthened their club by the addition of McShannic, Lauer, and also played Williams, our new man who is to finish the season here with us. Mc-Keesport also had England added to their team. Both pitchers pitched good ball and Liston caught a great game and not a base was stolen on him, except when there was a man on third.

Martin played a great game both at the bat and in the field, and Costello made several great stops, although he was unlucky in having several bad errors. Bennett caught well, considering that he was hurt several times with foul tips. Retzei made a great stop, and Williams played a great game at right. The Mc-Keesports leave next Monday for three games at Youngstown, and then two at Scottdale and three at Cumberland.

A YALE MAN'S INDIAN FAMILY.

Romantic Career of a Graduate Who Joined the Yakima Tribe. Yakima (Wash.) Cor. Globe Democrat.1

There is upon the Yakima Reservation a family of half-breeds known as the Olneys. A romance is associated with the name. The white father of the Olneys died recently, but to the last be shunned his own race. In some respects he was like Sam Houston, but unlike Sam Houston he never repented of his self-banishment among the Indians. He was of a highly respectable Rhode Island tamily, and a graduate of Yale College.
About the time he completed his studies the discovery of gold in California occurred.
Olney joined the Argonauts of '49, and came West to seek his fortune. He left behind him a sweetheart to whom he was to be married as soon as he found the fortune and re-turned. The girl grew weary of waiting, as many another of her sex has done. About a year after he reached the coast, Olney received a letter announcing the marriage of his betrothed. He never got over the blow. Drifting about for a time, he located in Oregon, and was made sheriff of Wasco county. In those days there was usually excitement enough in the duties of sheriff to banish the memory of the past. But after a while Olney got tired of hunting down criminals. He gave up his office, crossed the Columbia river and became a member of the Yakima tribe. His adoption was in good faith on his part, for he took an Indian wife and raised a family. As his children grew up he educated them with care, and when he died he left them well provided for. The Olneys are influential in the tribe, and they exercise that influence for good. But they have no thought of leaving the reservation. They seem to have inherited from their father his disinclination for white society.

DIVINATION BY CRYSTALS.

Revival of a Peculiar Art Practiced by Ancient Necromancers. Youths' Companion.]

The notice of a scientific man has recently been directed to a revival of the old experiments in "crystal vision," known as divination to the Assyrians, Persians, Japanese and Hebrews in the earliest times. The necromancers among these people in the early ages of the world declared that they were able, on looking into a crystal or beryl, or into a cup filled with a black, opaque liquid, to see scenes and figures which toretold the future. It was the cup with which Joseph "divined," our readers will remember, that was placed in the mouth of his brother Benjamin's sack.

Down through the whole course of English and French history we find occasional mention of crystal divination as practiced by charlatans. It is revived now, and with the light of science turned upon it will probably prove to be a very simple matter. The experimenters in England and this country procure a globe of crystal, or black, shining surface, and holding it close to their eyes look fixedly at one point until a sense of dizziness and faintness is produced. Then they assert that pictures are seen in the magic mirror—figures, landscapes or words. These "visions," they state, can invariably be referred to some idea which had passed through their brains and had been retained

While the explanation of the phenomena is not yet fully given by physicians, it is probable that they are produced by the strain upon the optic nerve, which affects the brain. The nausea and faintness which we are told came upon the ancient diviner to punish him for his too near approach to the immortal gods were, it is likely, caused by the reaction of the overstrained nerves upon the stomach.

QUEENS IN EXILE. Olive Weston, in will interest all readers of THE DISPATCH to-morrow with an article under this head.

PECULIARITIES OF LONDON. ensity of a City That is Made Up of Cities.

Providence Journal.1 The main peculiarities of London that strike an American who goes there for the first time are the smallness of the buildings of all sorts, the extraordinary number of shops, the exaggerated effect of extreme age lent to all buildings and statues by the soft coal smoke, the great number of policemen on duty and soldiers on leave seen in all parts of the town, the extraordinary speed the cabs and handsoms make, and the quantity of drink that all classes indulge in. Next the visitor begins to realize the immensity of the city. It has no Washington street, or Broadway, it has at least a score of such streets. It has no one shopping quarter or dwelling quarter, it has 50 of

It is a city made up of cities. Other cities are combination of streets and houses, but London is an aggregation of cities, towns and villages. It makes no bid for favor, and no assertion of its greatness or wealth.

It has no tall building, and no sensational architecture of any sort. It has few great streets, and those that it has are minced up into lots of short streets with muddlesome changes of names. Yet its size impresses one after very few journeys into its laby-rinth of ways. Think of it! It is 30 miles across it, either lengthwise or crosswise. It is as big as nearly all of our cities put to-

New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Cincinnati, all combined have not as many inhabitants as London. That is difficult to realize, but you begin to do so when you find that, no matter where you ride or walk, you cannot get away from those things which are the surest signs of a great city; crowds of peo-ple, myraids of vehicles, endless lines of shops and all sorts of resorts for people in great numbers, such as music halls, churches, hotels, theaters, baths and schools, continuing to present themselves, mile after mile away from wherever you start

A DISCIPLINARIAN OF CHILDREN.

An English Lady Who Acts as a Bugaboo for a Fee.

New York Sun. ? Absolutely the latest importation from England established herselt yesterday on upper Broadway. She is a tall and rather hard-featured woman from Manchester, who displays the extraordinary sign on the door

"Disciplinarian of children." Her sister established the particular "profession," which she follows, in London nearly two years ago, and it is now trans-planted to New York. The mothers and fathers of families will probably be able to judge whether the idea is worth encouraging or not.

"My sister," said the Manchester woman, who has established herself here, "realizing that the majority of mothers love their children too much to punish them severely, conceived the idea of setting herself up as a public disciplination. a public disciplinarian. She is a woman of great force of character and unerring judgment in all matters concerning children, and she had extensive experience as a visiting nurse before adopting her present busi-ness. It is her idea that children are more severely punished when they are frightened than through any physical means. To slap a child in the heat of passion while the child is excited and unruly does not have half as salutary an effect as the more mature and considered punishment, such as imprisonment in a dark wardrobe or sending the little one to bed without supper. Better than this is to threaten the child with a visit from the bugaboo. The dread of the arrival of this awful personage will act as an incentive to good conduct with the most fractious children in the world. My sister is a bugaboo, and that is about what I am. The fee in England for visiting a house and disciplining the children is 2 shillings. This involves medical advice drawn from the fund of considerable experience in the world, besides whatever suggestions the condition of things may naturally lead up to. Besides this part of my business, I hope to teach, doctor and nurse the little ones. Of course, there are points of antagonism between these different functions, but #### the effect is good upon the children." SNAKES COMMIT SUICIDE.

Parent Serpents Take Their Own Lives After Their Young Are Killed.

Descret (Utah) News. J A few days ago it was mentioned in these columns that a family of Crotalus horridus. or American rattlesnakes, had been received from the park by John A. Hillstead, the family consisting of the father, mother and three young. The sequel is an illustration of the fact that sympathy and the ties of blood exist even in the reptiles. Yesterday Mr. Hillstead, in response to the desire of a friend, had two of the little snakes removed from the cage and put in alcohol, with the intention of forwarding them. They had scarcely been spirited away when the parent and mother snake, also the brother or sister remaining, bit themselves and literally committed suicide, dying in great agony within 15 minutes from the time the two little ones were taken away. Fact is stranger than fiction, and this is all a fact. Mr. Hillstead has the dead reptiles on exhibition, these who suicided having their self-inflicted wounds painfully apparent. It would be touching but for the fact that they were snakes.

Mysterious Slang Phrases.

Boston Herald. "Yellow work" is the latest popular phrase for bad work. From whence do these slang expressions come? All at once they are in the air, and all who are without respect for the purity of the English tongue are using them. They have their day and then they vanish.
